HEINZ COSTA RICA EHS DAY

At Heinz Costa Rica we celebrated the day of health, sustainability and occupational safety on two different dates: Day 1 - May 8th and Day 2 - May 15th. We had the same activities on both days in order to include hourly employees that were on night shift during day 1. On both days we had the following activities:

- Training on the Anti-Smoking Law, which is a new law recently approved that prohibits smoking in public and private areas. The training was conducted by Doctor David Sancho from Renata (Anti-Smoking National Association) who confirmed the group that proposed the law. After the training we declared Heinz Costa Rica as a smoke free site with the placement of signs in different areas.
- Training on fire extinguisher use, by Ronald Carballo of Aplacap which is the company that will train our brigade bi-monthly, starting on May. Ronald Carballo is a retired fireman with 35 years of experience. We also announced the inauguration of our “Days without accidents board” which was placed in the principal access of our plant.
- Monologue act titled “Trees Can Dance Salsa” by actress Valeza Villalobos, which was about a tree complaining about the way it is treated by humans and explaining the benefits of reforestation. At the end of the monologue we gave a tree to each employee for them to plant it at their homes, neighborhoods, farms, etc. These trees were donated by Asecan who is a government organization that plant trees on sidewalks and streets.
